The training includes four fundamental areas. These essential areas gradually build upon the participant's ability to lead themselves and others. The course spans over ten weeks and consists of research-based pre-work together with virtual and physical workshops. A variety of practical exercises are compiled to strengthen the participant's self-leadership and leadership abilities.

The ambition of the four modules is for the participants to have...

...developed the ability to practice and teach exponential learning.

...gained an understanding of the importance of trust-based leadership and insight into how to build emotional and rational trust.

...found the source of motivation, both for themselves and for others.

...developed the ability and flexibility to lead in different situations through the guidance of the performance model.
